Cook Islander Iva PARIMA is enjoying her stay in mission. She says her recent attachment with the Planning and Development section of the Participating Police Force has been a great experience.

“I enjoy working in this section as I learn a lot from my Australia and New Zealand counterparts. This is something new to what I do back at home and it is an added benefit for me” she said.

Although, she has only been policing in Cook Islands for four years she says being a team player with Planning and Development is a chance to develop her skills to contribute to RAMSI.

There are two members from Cook Islands in the mission now.
